

Greenhouse gas emissions from Australian Agriculture are approximately 16% of the total, but with adaptations to agricultural practices, this figure could be substantially reduced. GHG reduction strategies which Australian Agriculture should consider now and prepare to undertake after 2012 include :-

